LOCAL BREVITIES.

REPRESENTATIVE LODGE, No. 24, A. O. U. W., holds its annual picnic at Parlor Grove to-day.

THE St. Cecilia Mannerchor gives a family festival this afternoon and evening at the Lookout House.

THE Park Commissioners will hold an extra meeting next Tuesday. They failed to obtain a quorum yesterday.

THE voluntary petition in bankruptcy of John Bowman, of Columbus, was filed in the U. S. District Court this morning. Assets about $7,500, liabilities small.

MICHAEL SCHNEIDER, residing at Fairmount, fell from a street car at the corner of Green and Vine streets early last evening, cutting his face severely. Dr. Hinkle dressed the wounds.

THE body of the unknown man found in the Ohio river near Sedamsville, last Monday, is supposed to be that of Geo. Frank, who has been missing from his home for the past nine days.

THE Cincinnati Amateur Boat Club has received its new four-oared Spanish cedar shell, built by Messrs. Koenig & Maxwell, of Pittsburgh. The boat is on exhibition at Hall's Safe and Lock rooms. It is 41 feet long and 17 1/2 inches beam. The weight of the shell is 110 pounds.

THE American Israelite and Die Debut will not appear this week in consequence of the disastrous fire in Bloch & Co.'s establishment. The office of the Israelite will be at 200 West Eighth-street. Arrangements are being made for the appearance of the papers next week.

CHARLES EDMONDSON, accused of having, three weeks ago, stolen three head of cattle from Whitewater township, was on Friday arrested at Cleveland, by Marshal B. A. Pierson, but, aided by Thomas Williams and one Briggell, made his escape. The Marshal was in the city yesterday, looking for him.

THE CITY SOUTHERN was instructed yesterday by the committee on Fire Department to prepare a resolution for Council to require the Suburban Telegraph Company to remove their lines from the Police and Fire Telegraph wires and posts. The two companies fire ordinance was also referred back to Council.

Death of Another Pioneer.

Mr. Robert Crawford died yesterday afternoon at his late residence, in Glen Dale, aged seventy-nine years.

Mr. Crawford came to this city from Williamsport, Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, in 1816, when only twenty years old. He arrived here on a raft, which he started at the headwaters of the Allegheny. He commenced business in 1835 as a dry goods merchant, on the corner of Main and Fifth streets. In 1855 Mr. Crawford retired to private life and moved to his late residence at Glen Dale in 1856. He leaves two daughters, one brother and one sister, who is the mother of Mayor Johnston. His funeral will take place to-morrow.

THE INJURED FIREMEN.

Their condition this morning and their prospects.

The condition of the wounded firemen, at noon to-day, was as follows: Chief E. G. Magrue was resting quietly, and his bruises about the head and legs are less painful than yesterday.

He has a fair prospect of being fully recovered and of being about within two weeks at least.

Mr. E. P. Slocum, of the Hooks No. 1, is sitting up, and is doing better than at first expected.

The condition of Mr. E. Spencer, of the same company, is also fair. John Polman, captain of Company 5, is nursing his injuries well, and is, so far, able to go about.

Geo. Postel, Henry Hambrick, Henry Schuchman and John Fineris are also all doing well.

James McCormick, who had one rib broken and was badly cut in the face, is at the Marine Hospital in a very critical condition, even worse than yesterday.

The doctors at that institution, however, entertain some hopes, and there is at least a possibility that he may recover.

There seems to be much anxiety on the part of both near and less intimate friends of the unfortunate fire-fighters in regard to their condition.

The different engine-houses this morning and yesterday were visited by sympathizing persons, and many anxious inquiries as to state of the wounded were made.

The residence of Chief Magrue was also visited this morning by large numbers of sympathizing friends, and the anxiety for the early recovery of our valiant and popular Superintendent of the Cincinnati Fire Department seems to be universal in the minds of our citizens.

Umbrellas in the East. All over the East the umbrella has been used from remote ages, though at first mainly as an emblem of royalty. But for centuries past these useful appendages have afforded shelter to all classes from the fierce storms and burning sunshine of those fervid climes. In form and size the ordinary umbrella is nearly like our own, but the material is silk, or paper beautifully painted or glazed, and thus rendered perfectly water-proof. Though not very durable, these umbrellas are light and pretty, and so very cheap—about twenty cents each—that one does not mind their wearing out occasionally. They have been made and used in China, in just the same style, for fifteen centuries, and in the neighboring countries for perhaps nearly as long a time.

The state umbrella is quite a different affair—much larger and of the richest materials. It is placed over the royal couch, throne and chairs quite as generally as carried in the open air. They are borne by high officers of state, and other members of the royal family wherever they go, and "umbrella holders" are recognized members of the royal household both in Burma and Siam. One of the numerous titles of His Majesty of Siam is "Lord of the White Elephant and Supreme Owner of the Umbrella"—that is, of the umbrella of state, which it would be high treason to raise over any head but that of the king. It is of crimson or purple silk, very richly embroidered in precious stones, lined usually with white satin, inwrought with silver flowers and seed pearls in exquisite clusters, and trimmed with heavy gold fringe and costly lace. Sometimes, on great occasions, umbrellas are carried in tiers of two, three, and five, one above the other, diminishing in size toward the top, and forming a perfect pyramid; while from the rim of each umbrella depend scores of tiny gold or silver bells, which, by the passing breeze, make sweet music, that floats upon the air like the sounds of an Aeolian harp. In Burma the king's umbrella is white, and that of the court red while in the royal city, but elsewhere they carry gold or gilded ones; and always over the dead bodies of the nobility are placed gold umbrellas, usually the gift of the sovereign. Both in Burma and Siam there are many state umbrellas, all of precisely the same pattern, and one or more is carried over a king's head on all occasions, whether sitting or reclining, riding or walking, at home or abroad.

The Emperor of China, who never does anything in moderation, has twenty-four umbrellas carried before him whenever he goes out hunting—perhaps as a protective against wild beasts. But then, as he has an equal or larger number to herald his coming on other occasions, we may conclude it is only a love of displaying his wealth or grandeur—rather an absurd display it would seem to us. The heir to the crown has ten umbrellas, and other princes and nobles five, three and two, and one respectively, according to their rank. So one may usually read the rank of a noble he sees approaching by the number and style of his umbrellas, as he discovers the rank of a mandarin, or civil officer, by the color of his buttons.—Xavier Roper Feudge, St. Nicholas for August.

In Scotland they have narrow, open ditches, which they call sheep drains. A man was riding a donkey across a sheep pasture, but when the animal came to a sheep drain he would not go over it. So the man rode him back a short distance, turned him round and applied the whip, thinking, of course, that the donkey when going at the top of his speed would jump the drain before he knew it. But not so. When the donkey got to the drain he stopped all of a sudden, and the man went over Mr. Neddy's head. No sooner had he touched the ground than he got up, and looking the beast straight in the face he said, "Yerra wee pitched; but then hoo are ye gaun ta get over yerseel?"
